

Human Resources

Brittney Jackson Brown, VLA Intern

Brittney Jackson Brown is a graduate student at Vanderbilt University pursuing two professional degrees from Peabody College of Education and Vanderbilt Divinity School. She began her role as an intern with the Vanderbilt Leadership Academy in May 2015. Brittney is responsible for facilitator material preparation, ensuring program logistics are complete, and working with partners across Vanderbilt to ensure success for each program event.

Prior to returning to a college campus, Brittney held professional roles in employee relations, talent, and organizational development for large manufacturing companies in Nashville, TN. Upon completion of her studies she hopes to combine interests in interfaith dialogue, employment, and social justice within the context of leadership development and social responsibility. In her spare time Brittney volunteers as a Cal Turner Fellow on immigration rights advocacy, with the Nashville Freedom School Partnership, and the Oasis Center.

MBTI: INFP

Strengths Finder: Adaptability, Empathy, Deliberative, Intellection, Input

Contact Brittney by email or by phone: 615-936-6921